JOE NICELY'S SANITY

Dr. Orth, of Harrisburg, Says the Prisoner Is Not Shamming.

WHAT BROUGHT CONVICTION HOME

The Action of the Man, He Thought, Could Not Be Simulated.

WRECK OF THE LIZZIE BAY IN THE OHIO

ISPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH.1 HARRISBURG, March 30.-The most reliable information here is that Governor Pattison will not grant a respite to Joseph Nicely, notwithstanding the report that Dr. H. L. Orth, of this city, who examined the condemned man, reported to the Governor to-day that he was insane. This examination was made at the request of counsel and the prisoner's father. The doctor, after telling that he went to the Somerset jail on the 27th, and with the jail physician, Dr. Kimmel, examined the cell in which the prisoner is confined, describes what he

He says that the prisoner moved in seemingly methodical manuer around the rear half of the cell, starting from the washstand, which he would seize hold of, washstand, which he would seize hold of, shake and pound, then to the smooth wall, passing his right hand along the surface until it met the projecting rib, which he would fumble a short time; then to the corner of the room, where he would pass his fingers over the rivet heads and up and down the auxie iron; then pass on to the side and along the wall to another projecting rib, and go through the same maneuvres with the same hand. Then, with his left hand and arm continually moving up and down in an aimless way, he would cross up and down in an aimless way, he would cross the room and repeat his walk, as if seeking some starting point to work his way through the walls. He never approached the cell bars.
Noise in the corridors did not, apparently, in any way attract him.
The doctor says the Sheriff informed him that the prisoner kept up this motion almost that the prisoner kept up this motion almost constantly. He slopt but little, ate little, and then only when led to the table. All of his habits were described, and then the doctor

"After every effort to secure a reversal of the verdict or a pardon had proved abortive, the motive to simulate disease was so great, e out of the details of this simula for was so east, even under the eye of a keen abserver, in the time and place that could be ecurred for this investigation, that I ap-proached the examination with great hesi-

"But the history of the prisoner (as learned from Dr. Kimmel and the jail attendants) his appearance, his physical condition, his manner of action, all combined to sweep away my of action, all combined to sweep away my prejudice, and convinced me of the present mental and moral irresponsibility of the prisoner, and i undoubtedly believe him to be insane and a proper person to be committed to the care of an insane hospital."

A Dispatch from Somerse: says: Nicely passed a quiet night and seemed to sleep well last night, and ate a hearty breakfast this morning. A. H. Coffroth, his counsel, asserted that Joe could neither see nor hear asserted that Joe could neither see nor hear and that he is insane. This is flatly contra-dicted by the death watch, who says that he can both see and hear and does not believe him

Her Passengers Are Rescued by the Steamer Keystone State. PERCHAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATORA

WHIELING, March 80 .- Passengers on the Keystone State report an exciting time down the river yesterday. When the Keystone State was about two miles above Powhattan, feeling her way through a dense fog, the whistle of a heat in distress was suddenly heard. The Keystone State put on more steam, and soon reached the Linzie Bay, which had run upon a rock on the Ohio shore and was rapidly filling with water, her paule-stricken passengers shricking with terror, expecting every minute to be enguifed. The gangplank was quickly let down, and all were transferred to the Key-stone State. In the mean time the Lizzie Bay kept up her signals of distress until the tow-boat if. D. Wood came along. The latter landed her tow of barges, rigged up her viphous and began to pump out the sinking steamer while her passengers were being trans-terred to the Keystone State. An investigaterred to the Keystone State. An investiga-tion was made, and it was found that the boat had run on a rock 50 feet from the Obio shore. A hole was broken into her near the bow, and the timbers were crushed for 15 feet. The bow clung to the rock, fortunately for those on board, and kept the boat from sinking. The Large Bay had about 150 passengers nearly all bound for Pittsburg. The Keystone State already had on board over 250 persons. The Lizzis Hay was to be sent to the docks at Point Pleasant on her next trip to be length-
